The committee on program includes the general committee with the addition of Dr. G. S. Cox, Miss Olive De Luce and Dr. Fred Kellar.

FRIDAY THE 13TH ALMOST A JINKS FOR IOWA COUPLE

Maryville Lawyer Takes Forlorn Couple Under Samaritan Wing and All is Happy.

Friday the thirteenth trailed its jinks in the steps of a couple from Council Bluffs, Iowa, who started out to get married yesterday. It likewise trailed Recorder Don Baker and made him leave his home fireside and get out in the blustery weather about nine o'clock last night to get the license.

The couple was James Nelson Rouse and Vivian Clark of Council Bluffs. They obtained a license yesterday morning at Council Bluffs and came on to Stanberry to have the splicing finished. When they reached the latter place they learned an Iowa license could not be used. All sad and forlorn they were wandering around the streets of Stanberry last night when Ellis Cook found them, suggested they come with him to Maryville, get a new license and have another try at getting married. Piloted by Cook they reached Maryville about eight o'clock, routed out the recorder then went to the home of Rev. R. E. Snodgrass pastor of the First Christian church where they were married by Mr. Snodgrass.

Mrs. Lillian Selecman and daughter, Mary Elizabeth, went to Bolckow last night to spend the week end, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fuller.

CITY PUBLIC WAYS ALL CLEAN TODAY

MAYOR AND COMMISSIONERS INSPECT THIS MORNING.

WOMEN'S CLUBS TO HELP

Co-operating in the Work of Beautifying Maryville—To Plant Trees in Parkways.

Mayor Garrett and the city commissioners this morning made a thorough inspection of the sidewalks and public thoroughfares in the business section and found everything clear and clean and fully conforming to the new ordinance governing the upkeep of public walks and ways and prohibiting the placing of an obstruction on the city walks and streets. The ordinance became effective yesterday and no violations were evident.

At the next meeting of the city council several other ordinances are to come up for discussion and revision. Among these is the upkeep of parkways and a provision for planting trees in the residence parkways.

The provision for tree planting is made for the benefit of the residence districts and in the less improved streets and additions. The trees would add greatly to the beauty of both street and adjoining property. The planting will be governed entirely by the city so that all parkways will be uniform.

The civic department of the Twentieth Century Club have been co-operating with the city commissioners in their efforts to make Maryville a more beautiful city, and the women have a number of plans which they expect to put into practice when the weather and time is opportune. Some of their suggestions will probably be incorporated into the city ordinance. They have other plans for individual work in the beautification of their home town and these include such as creating a property owner's pride that will keep his own yard and surroundings attractive and clean, the converting of railway approaches, the water stand pipe ground into a small park and giving a similar treatment to other vacant lots and unsightly places around the town.

SECRETARY OF STATE LANSING RESIGNS

DIFFERENCES OF CABINET MEETINGS AND OTHER MATTERS.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS

It Is Predicted in Washington that an Investigation will be made—Issue Only a Subterfuge!

Washington, Feb. 14.—Official Washington was astonished today by Secretary of State Lansing's resignation, following a sharp rebuke from President Wilson for having called cabinet meetings during the president's illness. It is freely predicted there will be further sensational developments in this most amazing page of the history of the present administration. Certain members of congress have already suggested there shounld be an investigation into the conduct of the government during the past three months. At Lansing's home the newspaper men were informed Mr. Lansing will not be at this office today. The inference was clearly given out that when Mr. Lansing left the office last night he left for good and all time.

At the White House no comment was made on the subject of Lansing's resignation beyond saying no further resignations from the cabinet are expected and the president up to yesterday had not decided on a successor to Lansing. Secretary Tumulty had little to say. At the state department Acting Secretary of State Polk refused to comment on the correspondence between the president and Lansing.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Robert Lansing ended his career as secretary of state yesterday after President Wilson had accused him of usurping the powers of President by calling meetings of the cabinet during Mr. Wilson's illness.

Mr. Lansing denied he had sought or intended to usurp the presidential authority. He added, however, that he believed then and still believes that the cabinet conferences were "for the best interests of the Republic", that they "were proper and necessary" because of the President's condition and that he would have been derelict in his duty if he had failed to act as he did.

As the record stands, Mr. Lansing tendered his resignation and Mr. Wilson accepted it. The resignation was offered, however, only after the President under date of February 7, had written asking if it were true that Mr. Lansing had called cabinet meetings and stating that if such were the case he felt it necessary to say that "under our constitutional law and practice, as developed hitherto, no one but the President has the right to summon the heads of the executive department into conference."

Mr. Lansing answered two days later last Monday—saying he had called the cabinet conferences because he and others of the President's official family "felt that, in view of the fact that we were denied communication with you, to was wise for us to confer informally together on matters as to which action could not be postponed until your medical advisers permitted you to pass upon them."

The secretary concluded by saying that if the President believed he had failed in his loyalty to his and if Mr. Wilson no longer had confidence in him he was ready to "relieve you of any embarrassment by placing my resignation in your hands."

The President replied last Wednesday that he was "much disappointed by Mr. Lansing's letter regarding the so-called cabinet meetings." He said he found nothing in the secretary's letter "which justifies your assumption of presidential authority in such a matter," and added that he "must frankly take advantage of your kind suggestion", to resign.

"I must say", continued the President, "that it would relieve me of embarrassment, Mr. Secretary, the embarrassment of feeling your reluctance and divergence of judgment, if you would give up your present office and afford men and opportunity to select someone else whose mind would more willingly go along with mine."

Before this letter was written, the day for the regular cabinet meeting—last Tuesday— had passed and the correspondence discloses why the cabinet did not meet. On the same day he received this letter from the Presi-

ACCEPTS PRINCIPLE OF WAGE TRIBUNAL

RAILROAD WORKERS REPLY TO PRESIDENT THIS AFTERNOON

UNION HEADS TO MEET

February 23 set as a Tentative Date for Meting—Maintenance Strike Still Stands for Fez. 17.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The railroad workers have accepted the principle of the President's proposition for a wage tribunal to settle their wage demands, it was learned at the White House today. Railroad workers representatives delivered their answer to the President at one o'clock this afternoon. Following delivery of the men's answer to the President, the workers asked for additional information and the authority of the proposed commission and make counter proposals, one being that the decision of the board be retrospective. The way also left open for the entire matter to be submited to the general chairman of all railroad organizations. It is probable that the workers will require a reply from the President.

Fernary 23 has been set as tentative date of the meeting of the general chairmen of all railroad unions and brotherhoods, it was announced this afternoon. At this meeting the president's proposals will be further discussed. The brotherhood of the maintenance and way employees had not signed the statement to the president. Their proposed strike will not be affected by the action today.

Detroit, Feb. 14.—Grand President Baker of the maintenance of way employees and shop laborers said today so far as he knew nothing had been done by the president to warrant a postponement of the strike, and instructions were sent to district chairmen last night assuring them the strike called for February 17 will hold.

TEACHERS' SALARIES A CRIME.

From Kansas City Post.

It has really been a financial crime the way the public has underpaid the school teachers of the country. The discrimination against the school teacher is of long duration; it has been bitter, unfair and miserly.

Do you know—and this is without offense—that the hodcarrier is better paid than the principals of many of our schools

Do you know that the man who shoes your horse is better paid than most of the teachers who educate your children?

Do you know that the janitors in your school buildings are better paid than most of your teachers in the same building?

The public seems to have heard the call of everybody for more wages except the school teachers. Do you think it fair to pay to these splendid men and women who largely have shaping of the lives and of the morals and of the characters of our children, such wages as they have been getting under the present condition of high prices for everything? Hasn't the public imposed upon these teachers? Haven't they been treated in a most contemptible way?

There is no influence in the world so powerful for good as the influence exerted by the teachers of the country over the young and growing and plastic minds of our children, and yet, in all of the expense and increased cost of living, we have picked out the school teacher as the laborer who was unworthy of his hire. He has been forgotten and overlooked because he has been patient, long suffering and always hopeful that in time the public would realize the great injustice it was doing him.

But the public is a sort of blind institution—it is not very receptive—especially when more money is called for. The public largely is thinking of itself and it pays mighty little attention to those fine characters in the world who do not stand upon the house tops and bray aloud their claim.

The Post hopes to see the day, and to see it soon, when the teachers of Missouri and of the entire world will receive a proper money remuneration for the almost sacred work they do.

Isn't the educated man or woman who devoted years to acquiring learning and knowledge in order to teach many, many children entitled to as much pay as the hodcarrier who learns his trade in a week or so?

The teacher has in his care the soul and character of our children; the hod carrier has in his care brick and mortar. He works and handles nothing but the cheapest grade of material things. The school teacher handles priceless human lives and souls—who would you say should, by every law and fairness and decency, receive the greater pay the hodcarrier or the teacher? But at the present time the hodcarrier is getting the most money, and we must stop this discrimination, this unfairness, this niggardly treatment of our school teachers. They should be placed, as far as salary is concerned upon the most favored plane of the most honored professions and not held down to the plane of the hod carrier or of the menial and the Post is going to be one that will join with the public and see that the school teacher of the state are properly paid for the fine spiritual influences that they exert in the lives of the youths of this state.

CHEAPEST FEED TO BUY.

Farmers, as a rule, feed their poultry the grain that is cheapest on the farm that year. Many poultry specialists and most small poultry keepers use their favorite poultry feeds without considering either the quality of the supply or the possibility of using cheaper substitutes.

Under normal conditions, corn is the cheapest poultry feed, in nearly all parts of the United States, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. During the past year oats have been in nearly every locality cheaper than corn. When corn goes down to $1.50 a bushel, oats should be 75 cents and barley $1.20 a bushel to give the same value as poultry feed.

Oats, with the hulls on, contain more indigestible matter than corn, and the indigestible hulls also make oats less palatable to poultry and of less feeding value. An average sample of oats should be valued at about 12 to 15 per cent less than a good sample of cracked corn. The best wheat usually available for poultry is not actually worth more as a poultry feed than good cracked corn. Low-grade and damaged grains are suitable for poultry feed if birds in good condition will eat them readily.

What's a Farmer?

A farmer is—

A capitalist who labors.

A patriot who is asked to produce at a loss.

A man who works eight hours a day; sleeps eight hours a day; frets eight hours a day.

A man who has every element of nature to combat every day in the year.

A man who is a biologist, an economist, and a lot more ists.

Who gives more and asks less than any other human being.

Who takes onto himself for his own sustenance and that of his family, those of his products that other people will not utilize.

Who is caricatured on the stage and in the daily papers but who can come nearer taking hold on any business and making it go than any other American alive and in captivity.

That's what a farmer is.—Drover's Telegram.

TIME ADDS TO LINCOLN'S FAME

Passing Years Bring Increased Acknowledgment of His Wise Statesmanship.

IN the mere recital of the facts of Lincoln's life there is little to account for his being the only American except Washington whose birthday has been made a national holiday. His origin was English, as he descended from English Quakers who settled in Pennsylvania. His own branch of the family went to Virginia, and thence to Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois. His birthplace, though rude, was not unlike those about him, the one roomed cabin of the Western pioneer, situated in a wild region and with only the rudest necessities.

His Early Studies.

There is nothing that gives us a better insight into the origin of his greatness than the story he tells of his early methods of study. Even as a boy, he says, he was accustomed to hear discussed public questions of every sort. The language and rhetoric of his elders was far beyond his comprehension, but with the true pioneer spirit the boy Lincoln, educated to overcome difficulties by his daily life, not tired by a multiplicity of subjects, was never willing to abandon a subject without understanding it. He would, after hearing a knotty debate, go over the whole controversy by himself until he was satisfied that he had extracted from it every root and gist of the matter. This done, Lincoln says, he strove to put into the simplest language what he had learned, in order that it might be within the understanding of any hearer.

Thus it was that he learned to analyze and solve political questions and having solved them, to present the matters in such form as to be understood by the simplest of his hearers. In the days when personal supremacy came mainly from the power of oratory or convincing speech there was no surer road to leadership.

Sure to Become a Power.

With a mind thus self-trained and kept from the world until manhood, Lincoln was sure to come into prominence as soon as he could in any way secure a public hearing. As Woodrow Wilson puts it, "He had had the instinct of the student in the midst of affairs, and had made himself a master of ideas and of language as an instrument of mastery. He had devised for himself straight thrusts of speech and the use of words that acted always like the application of light." Such a man will ever be put forward as champion by any party to which he lends his services. When, therefore, in the days of controversy between North and South over the great issue of whether the new territories should be slave or free, the Dred Scott decision declared that the people of a territory had no power to keep a slave owner from bringing his "property" into their community, and this became the burning question of the day around which gathered those who were opposed as well on a dozen other grounds, Lincoln was put forward as the champion of the Free Soil party against Senator Douglas, who upheld the constitutional sanction of slavery. Lincoln's plain way of putting things was evident in his famous declaration, "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this country cannot endure half slave and half free. I do not expect the house to fall, but I do expect it will cease to be divided."

Put Douglas in Dilemma.

By a clever set of questions Lincoln put Douglas into a dilemma that required him to lose either his following in Illinois or his following among the southern party. Douglas made his choice, antagonized the South, won the senatorship against Lincoln, but put himself out of the running for the presidency. Then came the insurrection led by John Brown, and the feeling excited by this event still ran high during the next presidential election. Douglas had been forced to stand for the right of the people of a territory to exclude slavery, and thus set himself against the Dred Scott decision permitting slave owners to bring their property into the territories. Upon this question the Democratic party split. The Republicans met in Chicago, and here the Illinois men so ably presented and advocated their new champion, Lincoln, that Seward lost the nomination and Lincoln won it.

In the following election Lincoln succeeded over his rival by a narrow majority, and really represented, so far as votes were concerned, a minority of the nation. Having staked upon this election the whole doctrine of state rights and the extension of slavery, the leading southern states looked upon Lincoln's election as a defiance of the whole course of legislation looking to the upholding of the southern view.

Determined on Secession.

The war followed, for the South considered state rights and slave labor as the foundation of their prosperity and power, especially since the invention of the cotton gin had made, as they phrased it, cotton the king of the world of commerce. Woodrow Wilson points out that in the northern opposition to slavery the South felt a keen sense of injustice. They believed that the worst side of the institution was willfully presented, that its necessities and its better side were willfully suppressed. In the election of Lincoln they saw the beginning of an attempt to dominate them completely. It seemed the outcome of a continual battle against them and their institutions, and they saw no escape except by secession from the Union.

As president, Lincoln disappointed the abolitionists and the more rabid opponents of the South. He waited until he believed that there was armed resistance to the federal laws, but when this crisis came acted promptly and effectively. The long conflict followed and belongs to history.

Ever since those days Lincoln's fame has been growing, and the best students agree that his was the broadest statesmanship and the wisest brain of all tested in those troubled times. More and more the country has come to see that he best understood the problems and best solved them. His assassination was a blunder for which the country, both North and South, paid dear. His speeches, his public documents, his state papers, reveal a greater man as they are studied more deeply, and today the leaders of thought, both North and South, pay to his memory due meed of reverence.

TOLD GOOD JOKE ON HIMSELF

Lincoln Appreciated Humor in Remark Made by Exceedingly Frank, Outspoken Lady.

When Mr. Lincoln was presented by the toastmaster of a banquet of Illinois editors in 1856, he began with an apology for his presence, speaking of himself as an interloper, and then he said he was reminded of an incident. He did not say that he was giving a personal experience of his own, but the editors surmised as much and were greatly amused.

Mr. Lincoln said that the man of whom he was speaking possessed features which the ladies could not call handsome. This man, while riding through the woods, met a lady on horseback. He turned out of the path and waited for her to pass. She stopped and looked at the man a few moments. Then she said:

"Well for land sake, you are the homeliest man I ever saw."

"Yes, madame," the man replied; "but I can't help it."

"No, I suppose not," the lady said; "but you might stay at home."

Lincoln's Task.

Mr. Lincoln's perilous task has been to carry a rather shaky craft through the rapids, making fast the unrulier logs as he could snatch opportunity, and the country is to be congratulated that he did not think it his duty to run straight at all hazards, but cautiously to assure himself with his setting pole where the main current was, and keep steadily to that. He is still in wild water, but we have faith that his skill and sureness of she will bring him right at last.—Lowell (1864).

Lincoln's Blessing.

Lincoln attended a woman's fair given in 1864 for the benefit of the soldiers. In his speech he praised the soldiers and then added: "If all that has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of women were applied to the women of America it would not do them justice for their conduct during the war. God bless the women of America."

Pointed Out Safety's Path.

Abraham Lincoln said: "Teach reverence and obedience to the Constitution and laws of our country and we are safe; otherwise there's danger ahead."

Schemer.

"I must tell you, Edgar, that I cannot cook."

"But those excellent meals I have had at your house?"

"Were all prepared by our cook."

"Do you think we can get her away from your folks when we are wed?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Father Was in Training.

Ethel—The bride nearly fainted during the ceremony and had to be supported by her father until it was over.

Egbert—Yes; and now I hear her father is supporting both of them.—London Answers.

Natural Way.

"So you had a lot of celebrities at your farce. How did the lions take the show?"

"Oh, they were in roars."

What Kind.

A young fellow who was off on a jaunt out West, fell into hard luck and had to pawn one of his suits. Just before starting home he managed to get it out again. When he reached home his mother, while unpacking his trunk, came across the coat with the pawnbroker's tag on it.

"John," she inquired, "what is this tag on your coat?"

John, not wishing to have his mother know of his temporary embarrassment, said:

"Oh, I was at a dance and checked my coat."

Soon she came across the trousers with the same kind of a tag on them.

"John," she demanded, "what kind of a dance was that?"

U. S. SELLS PART OF BIG WAR FLEET

163 VESSELS DISPOSED OF THROUGH SHIPPING BOARD.

GOVT. DIRECT OPERATION

From Amount Sold Now Government Derives Over $82,000,000—More to Be Sold.

Washington, D. C.—To date the United States has sold through the shipping board 163 vessels of the large fleet built and aequired during the war. The government is now directing the operation through various shipping firms of the remainder of its enormous war merchant marine of approximately 1,675 vessels, principally steel cargo vessels, and there remain several hundrd vessels now under contract or construction yet to be delivered to the United States Shipping Board. Pending definite action from congress on the disposal of this enormous fleet, America's first merchant marine in a century, the board is disposing of those vessels available for sale and for which a reasonable price is offered. The remainder of the fleet is being let to private operators on a percentage basis of the freight return.

From the 163 vessels sold to date the government will receive a return of $82,424,408, many of them being old vessels acquired during the war, and lake steamers remodeled for coastwise and ocean service in the emergency. Of the total sales to date, beginning sometime last summer, only 36 of the vessels were the new steel cargo type of ship constructed during the war by the Emergency Fleet Corporation. These 36 vessels alone brought $50,801,769 of the total sale returns. There are more than a thousand of these vessels yet to be disposed of or operated by the shipping board.

The remainder of the fleet sold to date consists of "old tonnage acquired by seizure and purchase, wrecked vessels, etc., sold 'as is' account of age and condition," of which there were 41, principally reconstructed vessels taken off the lakes during the war, and which brought a return of $16,002,586. Eighteen wooden vessels were sold for a sum total of $8,681,362; 17 tugs bringing $1,817,000 and 41 barges bringing $1,928,700. Sales to date have also included 10 of the wooden vessels built during the war, which brought a total return of $3,193,000. The sale of the steel vessels, it is pointed out by officials here, have thus far averaged over $216 per deadweight ton out of the 235,193 ton capacity of the 36 vessels sold, and it is predicted that the government will experience little difficulty in securing the return through sale of the millions spent in the construction of the fleet, in addition to having placed an American merchant marine again on the high seas.

With the approval of President Wilson the United States Shipping Board is now preparing for the sale of the 30 German liners secured by this country during the war. Protest was at first lodged to this sale by the War Department on the ground that the country would need these vessels as a reserve transport service for the army. With the overcoming of this objection the terms of the sale will so read that the vessels will be bound to the American flag and will be subject, under whosoever's hands they fall, to recall for army transport service in any emergency that may arise. An offer of $28,000,000 has already been made for this fleet of 30 vessels in a block, but they will not be disposed of as a fleet to any one concern. The International Mercantile Marine Company has made a flat offer of $4,000,000 for the Leviathan alone. Block offers will be accepted at an auction to be conducted by the government this coming week for any portions of this fleet now being operated under the management of any one concern, by such operating concerns, but the fleet will not be disposed of as a whole in this manner.

"Fair and Warmer"

May Allison, popular Metro star will be shown next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Electric theatre in her latest and best screen success entitled "Fair and Warmer." "Fair and Warmer" is a farce comedy and they say that every one of the seven reels are filled with a great many laughs. May Allison plays the role of "Blanny" Wheeler, is madly in love with her husband and blind to all his faults. The scenes are laid in society circles of the city and many amusing situations come up to make this one of the best farce comedies that May Allison has ever been shown in. Many people say this picture can well be classed with Daddy Long Legs, and several other of the most successful comedy dramas shown within the last year.

RED CROSS TO HELP FIND SOLDIERS' HEIRS.

The American Red Cross has been asked to co-operate with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in a nation-wide campaign for the purpose of locating beneficiaires of dead soldiers who are entitled to government insurance, it was announced.

Within the last two years 966,951 allotments and allowance checks have been issued, properly addressed and mailed, by the bureau, and have been returned undelivered. These unclaimed checks aggregate $29,000,000.

Final disposition of all of these returned checks, with the exception of 141,819, have been made, but because of incorrect addresses given and moving around of beneficiaries, the bureau now has this number of unclaimed checks in its file.

It is the plag of the bureau to advertise such names in the section where the beneficiaries were last heard from, with the hope of thus reaching them.

John LeGrand Baker,
Doctor of Optics,
Maryville, Mo.

I wish to say to you two years ago last May my eyesight failed. I went to St. Joseph and called on Doctor ——. He tested and fitted my eyes with glasses. They were not satisfactory. I went back. He made another examination and said my eyes would have to be treated and possibly an operation. I then went to Rochester, Minn., and called on Mayo Bros. They made an examination and told me all my eyes needed was to be properly fitted with glasses. I went to Maryville and called on an eye specialist who fitted my eyes with glasses with no better results. I had almost given up hope of ever being able to see again, but at last on Sept. 26, 1919, I called on you. The examination was different from the others. You had the lens ground for each eye and I am wearing the glasses with entire satisfaction. I can see as well as I ever did, for which I am very thankful to you.

Very respectfully,
MRS. L. C. GRANTHAM.

LANSING RESIGNS

dent, Mr. Lansing announced that he had written other cabinet officers that he would not call any mors cabinet conferences for the present, but no explanation was offered. Inquiry at the White House brought only the statement that Mr. Wilson himself probably would call and preside at the next meeting of his official advisers.

When the cabinet met on October 5, Joseph P. Tumulty, private secretary to the President, issued a formal statement explaining the reasons for the conference. He said:

"The cabinet was called to consider questions in which more than one department was concerned and also to discuss the industrial conference."

He referred to the first conference called by the president with the hope of allaying the industrial unrest.

In his statement, Mr. Tumulty said that Rear Admiral Greyson, Mr. Wilson's physician, was present and "suggested that only urgent matters be brought to" the President's attention.

There after until this week the cabinet met more or less regularly. During the coal strike it met twice a week in an effort to the walkout of the miners and several weeks ago it was decided to have meetin gevery Tuesday and Friday.

MANY CHANGES IN CABINET.

Baker, Burleson, Daniels and Houston are Only Ones Left.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Among the survivors are Baker, Burleson and Daniels.

Secretary Lansing is the third cabinet officer to resign after differences with the President.

William Jennings Bryan was the first. He quit as secretary of state June 9, 1915, because he objected to the President's method of handling the diplomatic correspondence with Germany over the submarine warfare. Lansing succeeded Bryan.

The second was Lindley M. Garrison who resigned February 10, 1916.

Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, considered by many to be the ablest man in the cabinet, preceded Mr. Lansing by a few days, although his resignation was handed to the President last November.

William G. McAdoo resigned as secretary of the treasury last year, giving as his reason "A needed rest and more income." But it was said that McAdoo, having presidential aspirations, believed his chances would be better, if he quit also as director general of railroads at a time when clamor for their return to private ownership was insistent.

Carter Glass, who succeeded McAdoo, resigned to become senator from Virginia, and Secretary Houston was switched from the agriculture to the treasury department.

James C. McReynolds and his successor, Thomas W. Gregory, both resigned from the position of attorney general.

William C. Redfield resigned as secretary of commerce last November.

Only four members of the cabinet at the beginning of Mr. Wilson's first term remain. They are Daniels, Burleson, Wilson and Houston.

Mrs. R. R. Brown and her daughter, Mrs. William Alkire, left this morning for their new home at Sedalia. Mr. Brown and Mr. Alkire have recently purchased a farm near Sedalia and they left the first of the week with a car of household goods.

PAINS NEARLY DOUBLED ME UP

Nothing Helped Me Until I Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wyandotte, Mich.—"For the last four years I have doctored off and on without help. I have had pains every month so bad that I would nearly double up. Sometimes I could not sweep a room without stopping to rest, and everything I ate upset my stomach. Three years ago I lost a child and suffered so badly that I was out of my head at times. My bowels did not move for days and I could not eat without suffering. The doctor could not help me and one day I told my husband that I could not stand the pain any longer and sent him to the drug-store to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and threw the doctor's medicine away. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I could do my own housework. If it had not been for your medicine I don't know where I would be today and I am never without a bottle of it in the house. You may publish this if you like that it may help some other woman."—Mrs. MARY STENDER, 120 Orange St., Wyandotte, Mich.

REFERS TO BOOK AND VERSE TO TELL OF MARRIAGE.

Denver, Colo.—Herbert S. Sands, manager of he Westinghouse Electric Company, here chose a unique means of announcing to his friends that he had become a benedict.

This message was received by Sands' associates a few days after he had left for the east o na "business trip."

"Dust off your Bibles and read the twentieth verse, chapter ten, of the book of St. Luke."

When the dusting off process was complete this is what Sands' friends read:

"I have married a wife, and therefore, I cannot come."

Why Men Warble in Bathrooms.

London.—The day is coming when the corner traffic cop will have such musically attuned ears that he can estimate the exact speed of any auto from the hum of the engine and haul road scorchers into court accordingly.

That is the ominous forecast of Professor W. H. Bragg, professor of physics at London University. He says it is possible to estimate correctly the speed of a motor car by the difference in pitch of the sound when coming toward him and when going away.

Professor Bragg says the habit of persons breaking into song in the bathroom may be attributed to the note struck by running water and the resonance of the sparsely-furnished bathroom.

"When you get back into the dressing room," he said, "you find you have lost the advantage of the note."

BEE HIVE STORE TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD TODAY

Was Started Feb. 14, 1895 by Miller & Becker—Miller and Mutz Present Owners.

Today is the twenty-fifth birthday anniversary of the Bee Hive shoe store. On Valentine's day in 1985, W. A. Miller and John H. Becker opened their shoe store, which they had purchased from S. J. Butcher. Ten years later Mr. Becker sold his interest to Robert G. Sanders and engaged in the clothing business at Oklahoma City, Okla. At present he resides in Kansas City, Mo.

Robert Sanders held his interest for three years and then sold it to W. A. Miller, Frank Reavis and John Mutz. Later Mr. Reavis sold his interest to John Mutz, which makes the later and W. A. Miller the present owners.

The Bee Hive Shoe store has been a prosperous business institution since its beginning. Only three other business men who are still active, D. R. Eversole, N. Schumacher and Clark Weaver, have engaged longer in business in Maryville than "Bee Hive" Miller.

Wear B. V. D.'s to School.

Americans in Siberia last summer were startled to see children on the streets wearing underwear only. American sleeveless underwear was distributed in large quantities by the American Red Cross. The Serbians thought the garments much too fine for underclothes and sent their children to school dressed in union suits only.

Three Above This Morning.

A cold wave last night bringing a temperature of three above zero this morning and a strong wind from the northwest made a lot of folks criticise the ground hog in uncomplimentary terms for predicting warm weather. Following the mild temperature of the past few weeks, the change was keenly felt.

Fair and warmer are predicted for tonight and tomorrow.
